My path is sweet on either side
All through the dragging day,
Far, ah far as passionate eye can reach
And long, ah long as rapturous eye can cling;
The world is mine: blue hill, still silver lake,
Broad field, bright flower, and the long white road;
A gateless garden and an open path;
My feet to follow, and my heart to hold.

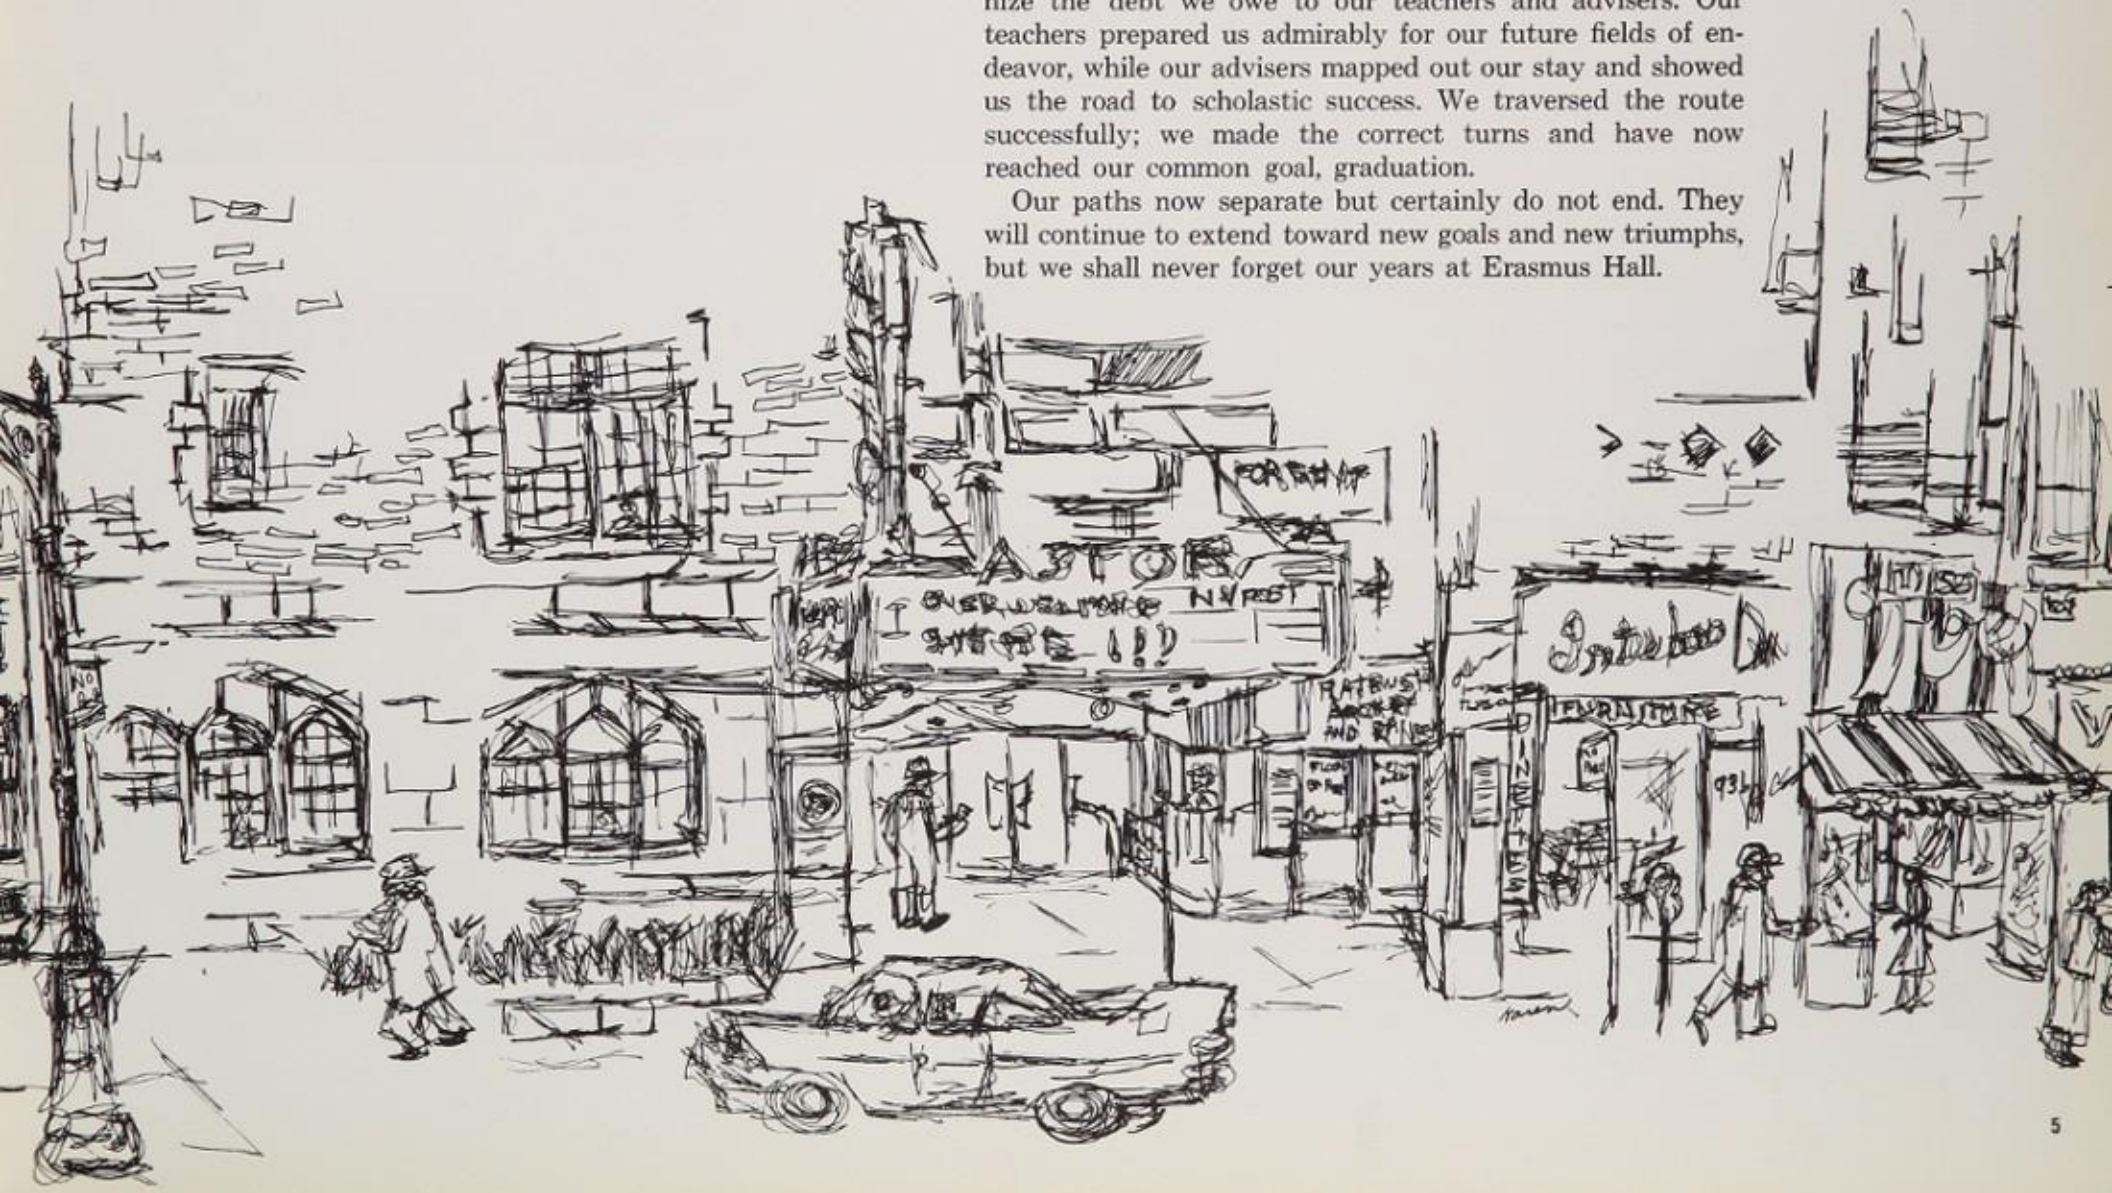
KEYNOTE

Four years ago we passed through the Arch and into Erasmus Hall. How bewildered we were then; how lost we were in the endless corridors and walks. Graduation was the far-off goal, only to be reached after a baffling series of correct turns.

Now, at graduation, we can look back and see ourselves as we were that day four years ago. We can trace with satisfaction the pathways of our lives at Erasmus. We can recognize the debt we owe to our teachers and advisers. Our teachers prepared us admirably for our future fields of endeavor, while our advisers mapped out our stay and showed us the road to scholastic success. We traversed the route successfully; we made the correct turns and have now reached our common goal, graduation.

Our paths now separate but certainly do not end. They will continue to extend toward new goals and new triumphs, but we shall never forget our years at Erasmus Hall.



DEDICATION

During our stay at Erasmus Hall we faced individual problems that required the advice of experienced and understanding counselors. Our grade advisers, Nina Ingargiola, Anne Stein, and Irving Pollack, provided this invaluable counsel and sustained, as well, monumental clerical burdens.

The long lines of students that extended at all times from their offices and the mass of records and files compiled by our grade attested the overwhelming nature and complexity of their work. With the aid of their unceasing labor and sympathetic advice, we were piloted through the often tortuous and confusing pathways to the successful conclusion of our high school career.

It is for their unselfish service on our behalf that we, the Class of 1961, dedicate our Yearbook to them.

Mrs. Anne Stein

Irving Pollack

Miss Nina Ingargiola

TO THE CLASS OF JUNE 1961:

Heartiest congratulations upon the successful completion of your high school course and best wishes for good health, success, and continued achievement in the many years that lie ahead.

When you go out from Erasmus Hall your paths will diverge widely. Many of you will go on to college; a good many others will enter business, industry, or the armed services at once. Strangely, most of you will see in the years ahead very few of those in your class. Scattered though you may soon be and engaged in a wide variety of occupations and pursuits, you will, nevertheless, all bear upon you the impress of these years in historic Erasmus Hall.

Your teachers have worked hard to help you develop in body, mind, and character. As the result of your studies here, you should have learned to think clearly and honestly, to distinguish between fact and rumor, to speak and write clearly, correctly and effectively, and to discriminate between that which is worth while and that which is cheap and tawdry. The finest minds and the noblest characters will be needed to help solve the problems that face our confused and bewildered world. Looking back over the scientific, industrial, social and economic developments in the last fifty years and the complete transformation of our way of life, one cannot hazard a guess as to the nature and extent of the developments in your lifetime. May you all grow with the times so that you may play your proper part in the determination of the shape of things to come and in the establishment of an order based on justice, freedom, and humanity.

May the years ahead for each one of you be a rich fulfillment of the great promise you have shown here, and may God bless you and guide you all the days of your life.

Sincerely,

John F. McNeill

ADMINISTRATORS

Arthur Chappell
Administrative Assistant

Miss Grace L. Corey
Administrative Assistant

The heavy burden of coordinating and administering the affairs of a school of seven thousand was ably assumed by Grace Corey and Arthur Chappell.

As administrative assistants, they had many important functions. They were responsible for the coordination of guidance policies, and thus they presided over grade adviser meetings. In addition, they were in charge of the clerical staff and of liaison with other schools. The task of designing teacher and student programs and special time schedules was also theirs.

While administrative duties consumed most of their time, Miss Corey and Mr. Chappell performed other services for Erasmians. Miss Corey was the dean of girls, and Mr. Chappell served as faculty adviser of the Cheerleaders and the Chess Club, and as a member of the Program Committee. Speaking of Mr. Chappell – Mr. Chappell was often speaking over the public address system, delivering messages of importance to teachers and students.

We are indebted to our administrative assistants for the excellent job they did in keeping the gears of Erasmus in mesh.

Miss Ellen Batchelor
Assistant Dean of Girls

Malcolm Shanman
Dean of Boys

Austin Dugan
Dean of Boys

DEANS

The deans preferred to think of their job as one of guidance rather than discipline. Theirs was to cope with the students' most difficult problems, to help those who really needed help. Fortunately, most of us did not fall into this category. Those who did require their assistance, however, found that the deans helped direct their energies in a more constructive way. Grace Corey, Ellen Batchelor, Malcolm Shanman, and Austin Dugan maintained our school's dignity and guided those who went astray back to the pathways leading to personal, social, and scholastic well-being.

GUIDANCE

Mrs. Dorothy Pohls
Employment Adviser

Morris Rohrberg
Senior Activities Adviser

The fine record that the Class of 1961 compiled in college admissions, scholarships, and employment was due in large measure to the sound advice and understanding offered by the guidance staff.

Dorothy Pohls was an important link between firms offering jobs and students desiring them. Through her efforts many obtained summer jobs, part-time employment, and full-time positions after graduation. Fanny Spieler and Isidore Halpern helped students to wise decisions in choosing colleges, while Ruth Ginsberg, scholarship adviser, helped open college doors for many who would not have been able to attend without financial assistance.

The task facing these four was an imposing one. Our graduating class had more than 1600 students in it, at least half of whom could be counted on to be in Room 8 at any time, waiting for consultation, perusing college bulletins, or merely enjoying the atmosphere of the busiest office in the school.

ENGLISH

The schizophrenic quality of our language was, perhaps, the greatest cause for concern to the English Department. With the patient efforts of its teachers, however, the conflict between the different Englishes that were spoken, written, and written for English teachers was successfully mediated, resulting in a perfect combination of clarity and good grammar. The armistice was signed in the many English classes of our school.

Grade theme centers helped to unify the oral and written work and literature for each year, giving extensive coverage and depth to the honor, regular, and modified curriculum classes. Students who needed special assistance found their needs fulfilled in remedial courses in reading and speech.

For those who wished to develop particular talents, special courses in specific fields were given. Potential actors and soap-opera stars took dramatics, taught by Marion Thrall and by Robert Stewart, or radio dramatics, instructed by Evelyn Hill. Those whose interest lay in debating joined Walter Balletto's discussion techniques class. Sophomores and juniors planning to enter the newspaper world were given the opportunity to elect journalism, conducted by Dutchman Adviser Erna Fleischer, while seniors wishing to develop their literary prowess took Ellen Batchelor's creative writing course.

This year, there were two additions to the English curriculum. The first was an advanced placement course, under the tutelage of Elizabeth Lathrop, covering the equivalent of college freshman English. Those students who passed a subsequent test were given credit for a year of college work. The second was Regina Hazen's experimental television class. Once a week, this group met to watch "American Anthology," a collection of televised literary selections designed to heighten student interest in our American heritage.

Richard Young contest winners, future English teachers, and the rest of us all gained much from four years of English at Erasmus. By way of thanks we each leave to the English Department our proudest possession: a full set of twenty-four book reports gingerly spiced with the red-pencil corrections of some falcon-eyed teachers.

FOREIGN LANGUAGES

The often incomprehensible cries of "Parlez-vous français?" "Se habla español," "Achtung," "Shalom," and "Veni, vidi, vici" were still ringing in our ears as our stay in Erasmus drew to a close. After all the foreign language instruction and drill we received, they will not soon be forgotten.

The Class of 1961 witnessed a gradual change in the method of teaching languages. Emphasis was shifted from written grammar to the speaking and aural comprehension of the language concerned. To implement this change-over to audio-linguistic instruction, a language laboratory was established. Using individual microphones and tape recorders, students could hear their own pronunciation and compare it with the frustratingly perfect speech on the tape. Of course, classwork and homework were not neglected.

For those particularly gifted in language work, honor classes were offered in French and Spanish. Here students learned of the history, culture, art, and literature of foreign countries in even greater detail than in the regular classes.

In this era of the shrinking globe, we all can be grateful to the ever-expanding language departments of Erasmus Hall.

SOCIAL STUDIES

Irving Berg
Chairman

Hopes for a laissez-faire attitude are shattered as Miss Renée Shapiro announces a test on private enterprise.

In the poster-lined rooms of the Social Studies Department, the path of history slowly unraveled before the startled eyes of the Class of 1961.

Our work in social studies was divided into several areas. World geography centered about the study of peoples, places, and products. In world history attention was focused on the political and intellectual emergence of the Modern World. American history dealt with the conflicts in our nation's past: federalism vs. states rights, freedom vs. slavery, isolationism vs. international participation. Through this course we attained a greater understanding of the challenges facing the United States. In economics we surveyed the history and principles of the existing economic order, with particular emphasis upon the characteristics of the modern American economy.

This year a new course, Problems in American Democracy, was initiated. The students, under the direction of Helen McQueen, used the daily newspapers as their textbook and took an intensive look at America's place in the world today.

It has been said that we study the past to understand the present better. At Erasmus this was indeed true. With our excellent background in geography, history, and economics, we ended our high school careers with a broad knowledge of the world situation.

MATHEMATICS

The untiring efforts of the Mathematics Department were not in vain; we all graduated with the ability to count our change, while some of us learned to take third derivatives with equal ease. These and other useful skills were taught in the eight different mathematics courses offered at Erasmus Hall.

Ninth year math acquainted us with the fundamentals of algebra. The special fear that we had reserved for numbers soon spread to selected letters as well, only to vanish entirely in a cloud of fascination and grudging admiration for our new friends X, Y, and Z.

Tenth year math introduced us to plane geometry. Triangles, squares, and circles, which had always appealed to us, took on new meaning as we learned more about them.

Mr. Louis Moskowitz preaches to his advanced algebra class on the subject of inequality.

In intermediate algebra our attitude toward numbers changed radically, as those we had known changed to radicals and even more complex forms. We soon became adept in the use of the new techniques taught in this course. We found that problems involving the construction of houses could be solved easily with the use of logs. We also learned that there were many factors to be considered in solving quadratic equations.

For the more ambitious student such courses as trigonometry, advanced algebra, solid geometry, and calculus were available. In addition, honor classes were offered in most areas, and special math team classes prepared selected students for interscholastic competition as well as covering the regular curriculum.

Many Erasmians have decided to continue their study of math. The rest of us bade farewell to quadratic, linear, cubic, exponential, logarithmic, and generally cryptic equations, frequent tests, and interminable homework with a heavy heart.

FINE ARTS

The artist of tomorrow, the student desiring to understand and enjoy the art of today and yesterday, and the pupil happy merely to be able to create his doodles, splotches, and clay chunks under expert supervision all benefited from Erasmus Hall's art program.

The required minor art course presented the basic relationships of color, form, and design with a view toward enhancing our appreciation of painting and sculpture. For the first time major art was offered as a fifth major subject for academic students. This three-year program included an introduction to all the major media of pictorial expression, while stressing the art of getting ahead in careers requiring talent and interest in art. Other innovations in this dynamic department included honor minor art classes and a television course called "Through the Eyes of the Artist."

As a result of our contact with the Fine Arts Department at Erasmus Hall, we gained a fuller appreciation of art, and we can now create our doodles, splotches, and clay chunks with proper perspective.

SECRETARIAL STUDIES

Like the famed barnyard rooster, the typewriters of the Secretarial Studies Department greeted us each morning with rhythmic clicks and clacks.

Future secretaries and others who had the opportunity of becoming acquainted with the department's wide offerings found the courses both enjoyable and beneficial. Stenography, in which the elements of shorthand were introduced, revealed that the hand is not only quicker than the eye but can beat the tongue as well. Observers might have confused stenography notebooks with textbooks in the abstruse realm of higher mathematics or with some form of Etruscan art. This, however, did not faze the students who soon became amazingly adept in the use of this valuable technique.

Also available were classes in typing at various levels of difficulty, where the operation of that most ingenious of modern inventions was taught. Other classes combined the elements of shorthand and typing. Those who were unusually fast and accurate enrolled in the special clerical practice course or took classes in the operation of switchboards, adding machines, and other types of business machines. Accelerated courses were also offered in typing and stenography for students pursuing academic programs who soon learned that longhairs and shorthand were compatible.

Hundreds of secretaries-to-be owe much to Erasmus Hall; the Secretarial Studies Department smoothed their roads to the business world.

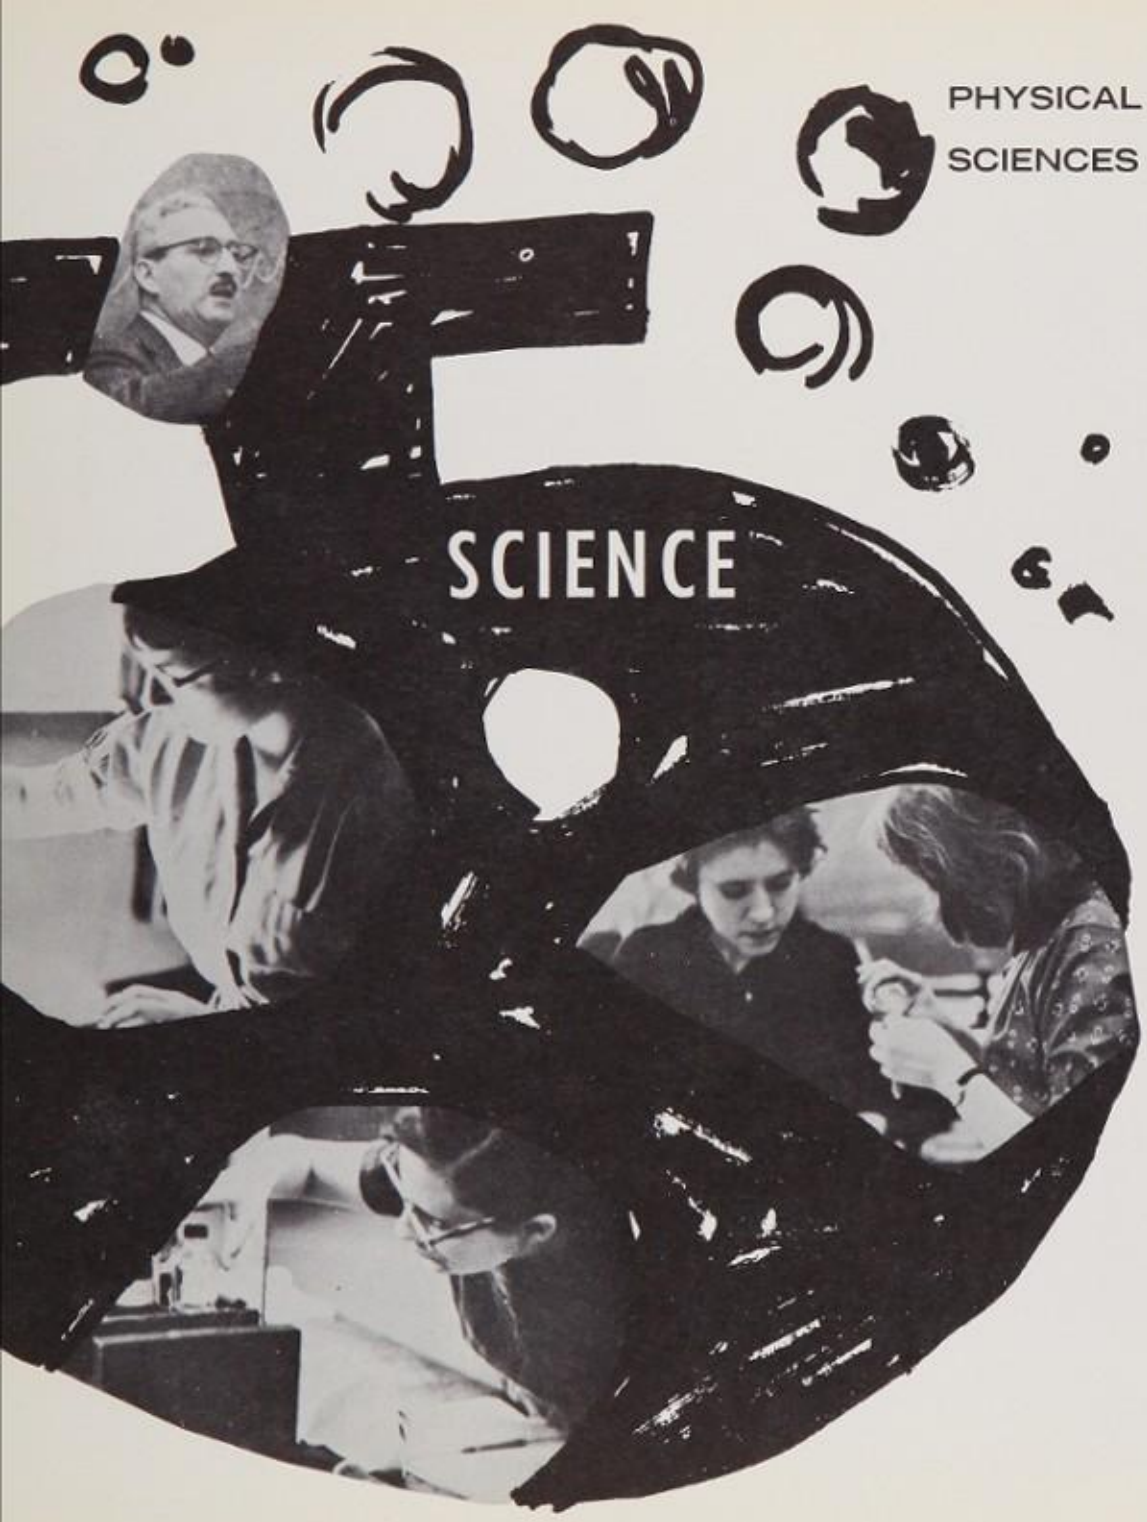
ACCOUNTING

Joseph Gelb
Chairman

The oft-heard remark of "mind your own business" was diligently followed by the students enrolled in classes of the Accounting Department. The various courses offered by the department were aimed at readying Erasmians to meet the increasing demands of an ever more complex business world.

The major course of the department was bookkeeping, which gave the student a working knowledge of commercial processes. A basic course for accounting majors was business arithmetic, in which business arithmetic, of all things, was taught. Business law introduced such concepts as contracts and legal suits, while business machines delved into such wit-sharpening subjects as the operation of computers, pencil sharpeners, and the like. The program in this field was enhanced by the addition of twenty-five comptometers – machines which add, subtract, multiply, and divide.

Merchandising and salesmanship was a two-year course which covered the principles of retailing and selling. Academic seniors planning to enter business colleges took an accelerated course in bookkeeping and accounting. Because of the instruction they received in accounting classes, many Erasmians are well prepared as they look forward to their entrance into the world of business.



PHYSICAL SCIENCES

Erasmus Hall's share of the Space Age consists of a row of third floor rooms noted for the endless variety of interesting odors which they emit. This area is the headquarters of the Physical Science Department, where we became acquainted with the way things tick.

Many learned the nature of strange-looking substances in the various chemistry courses given at Erasmus. Students following general programs took applied chemistry, while academic students who liked to solve problems, dissolve chemicals, and resolve liquids were offered regular chemistry. Talented seniors had the opportunity to do further work in the advanced chemistry class taught by Ellis Katzman; many received college credit for their work.

Those who wished to avoid the embarrassment of dropping test tubes chose physics or earth science. Physics was concerned with the scientific explanations of such familiar phenomena as light, heat, and sound. Earth science, which added an honor class this year, dealt with such things as oceans, puddles, mountains, and, perhaps, an occasional molehill (without the mole, of course. That was for the Biology Department down the hall).

Student interest was not limited to the classroom. Much independent work was done by those taking advantage of the school project room. Although Erasmus has yet to win a Nobel Prize, many of these projects were highly successful in various science competitions. Who knows what future scientists were spawned in that row of classrooms where the ghosts of Newton and Lavoisier continue to thread through crowded corridors, constantly on their guard for enthusiastic scientists-to-be, long after the Class of 1961 has gone?

BIOLOGY

The science of biology encompasses all living things. Since most of us belong to this category, it is not surprising that biology had such wide appeal. Under the inspiration of its instructors, this department was well equipped to meet our needs.

As first termers we generally learned general facts about all branches of science in regular or general science classses. As sophomores we took biology. During laboratory sessions we could be observed intently following hairy paramecia through jungles of spirogyra, intently cutting up frogs, or merely intently paying attention to our fascinating biology teachers. The steadily mounting enthusiasm with which we performed these acts led many of us to take Thomas Lawrence's zoology course, open to seniors who demonstrated unusual ability and interest in the field. Zoology acquainted us with the members of the animal kingdom, their structure and habits, and their relationship to one another.

The achievements of Erasmus science students this year in award programs, such as the Westinghouse Talent Search and the Science Fair, were truly outstanding. This was due in large measure to the equipment and encouragement provided in generous quantities by the Biology Department.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS

The birds of Brooklyn are a happier lot today, thanks to the noble efforts of the students of the Industrial Arts Department. With plans by Drafting, walls by Woodworking, lighting by Electricity, and plumbing by Metal, the bird houses constructed easily ranked with the most luxurious duplex homes.

Work in the four shops had a common purpose: to develop our manual and technical skills and to encourage creative expression through the use of tools and materials. In woodworking we gained valuable experience in carpentry and in the use of woodworking equipment. Metal shop taught us how to work iron, steel, and copper and how to construct products of metal. Electrical theory and methods of construction and operation of electrical apparatus were integrated in electrical shop. Mechanical drawing introduced us to drafting and blueprinting, essential skills for the engineer.

Whether for vocational or avocational purposes, those of us who took Industrial Arts courses received valuable preparation. We left Erasmus with an excellent understanding of industrial processes and materials.

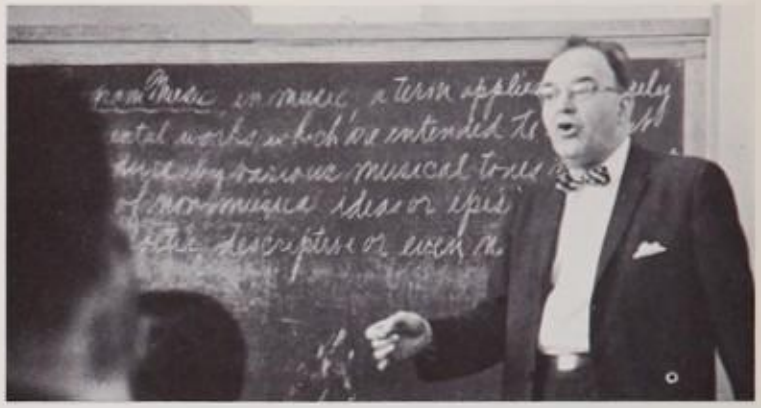
MUSIC



Mr. Charles Johnson faces the music in a senior music class.

One of the few things capable of making the sonorous voices of our teachers inaudible was the vocal and instrumental exuberance of the Music Department.

Aside from interrupting French tests, mathematics lectures, and English poetry readings, the Music Department had other important functions. It was responsible for organizing the many music courses offered at Erasmus Hall, and it presented the traditional Christmas and Spring Concerts. In conjunction with the English Department, the various musical groups worked on several television projects, the result being a combination of narrative and song.

Four terms of minor music were required for graduation. The basic fundamentals of music theory and group singing were stressed in these courses to help the student understand and enjoy good music. Many students also climbed the five flights in the Snyder Avenue Wing to take advantage of a variety of electives covering sight singing and the history, theory, and appreciation of music.

Erasmus Hall's proudest possessions included the singing clubs and orchestral groups. The members of the Boys Glee Club, Cantata, the Junior Chorus, and the Choral Club were taught to improve the tone and pitch qualities of their voices to provide for better singing. In an innocent-looking basement room, our instrumentalists perfected their techniques and prepared for ensemble play.

Music at Erasmus Hall was both interesting and informative. It was enjoyed by its teachers, practicing students, and all those within ear of its harmonies.

HOME ECONOMICS

Mrs. Marion Alexander
Chairman

While the odor of burning biscuits pervading the school might have perplexed an outsider, we at Erasmus could easily trace it to the bustling rooms of the Home Economics Department. It was here that the culinary talents and other homemaking skills of prospective housewives were developed.

Home Economics courses covered topics ranging from personality development and etiquette to child care and dollar budgeting. To help the girls practice the performance of household duties, the department set up a Family Living Apartment. In this model home the girls cleaned, laundered, and did other tasks necessary to maintain neatness and cleanliness. Sweeping dirt under the rug was, of course, forbidden. Violators were forced to eat their own cooking for not less than one and not more than two weeks – a just punishment for a dirty crime. Actually, the girls proved to be quite efficient housekeepers.

Another feature of the Home Economics Department was its well-equipped kitchen. Here students learned to prepare foods for every occasion. As the girls gained in experience, more and more exotic dishes were concocted. Beginners worked on the soft-boiled egg, while the more advanced students tried their hand at the medium and, occasionally, the hard-boiled ones. Seriously, the dishes that were "cooked up" were both differently delicious and deliciously different.

The girls who enrolled in the Home Economics program benefited greatly and were helped on the road to successful lives as wives and mothers.

HEALTH EDUCATION

George Eiss
Chairman

We would scarcely have been in condition to face the rigors of our other classes had it not been for the health education program at Erasmus Hall. Those all too short periods of frolicking in our stylish uniforms were welcome breaks – sprains, and dislocations in the day's routine.

The Boys Department program was comprehensive almost to the point of exhaustion. We learned the intricacies of various sports and also had the opportunity to participate in such masculine activities as basketball, volleyball, and swimming. The Girls Department concentrated on such feminine activities as basketball, volleyball, and swimming.

Sports gym consisted of special classes for the boys athletic teams. Emphasis was on perfecting the skills necessary for individual sports. Other special classes included dancing gym, where girls learned to move gracefully, and posture gym, where they learned to stand still gracefully.

Health education was not confined to the gymnasiums. Two terms of hygiene were required. There we learned the essentials of healthy living. We were also taught how to cope with poisoning, drowning, automobiles, and other threats which strike suddenly.

The entire program led us one step further on the road to becoming healthy and educated citizens.

GENERAL ORGANIZATION

AND STUDENT GUIDANCE

Who could avoid joining the famed General Organization of Erasmus Hall? At the beginning of every term we were met with entreatments from every possible source to drop what we were doing and join the G.O. A network of class representatives brought news of the organization to our official classes and carried our dues off to the G.O. office. From there, the money was diverted into the numerous school activities which added so much to our school lives. G.O. funds paid the expenses of the Dutchman, our athletic and scholastic teams, clubs, awards, and honor societies. Money was also spent to keep our campus beautiful and to maintain the newly-instituted student lounge.

The G.O. provided many other important services. One of the most useful of these was Student Guidance, a committee of experienced seniors who helped acquaint the entering class with student life at Erasmus.

G.O. officers Alan Evans, Michael Mashberg, and Susan Schertzer, and faculty adviser John Campana admirably performed the functions required of them. Thanks to the successful work of our General Organization, the first of its kind in New York City, our stay at Erasmus was made more enjoyable and gratifying.

STUDENT COUNCIL AND STUDENT ASSEMBLY

The numerous posters and campaign slogans that confronted us at almost every turn during our stay at Erasmus were the most conspicuous evidence of student government. Actually, after all the campaigning was over, our elected officials carried out their duties efficiently.

The Student Council and the Student Assembly together formed the basis of student government. The Student Council was the executive department of Erasmus. This body controlled the affairs of the General Organization. Funds were allocated for worthy activities and charities. Through the hard work of the council members, noteworthy events such as the Buff and Blue Dance and the Sing were conducted. The Council consisted of the grade presidents, the leaders of Student Assembly and the General Organization, the Boy Leader of Senior Arista and the Girl Leader of Junior Arista. Faculty advisers John Campana and Harry Davis offered experienced counsel at Council meetings.

Another part of the student government was the Student Assembly. Officers elected by each official class met and discussed the affairs of the school, making suggestions for improvements and exchanging ideas on all topics. Such useful activities as the Kings County Christmas Drive and the Red Cross Fund Raising Campaign were conducted under the leadership of the Student Assembly. Nina Dusenberry served as faculty adviser.

The Student Council and the Student Assembly were worthy efforts to give the student body of Erasmus a part in the conducting of school affairs. The lesson in democracy we learned from our participation in student government helped to make us all better citizens and potential voters.

The Dutchman, Erasmus Hall's famed newspaper, was justly renowned for its accurate and extensive coverage of school news, its interesting features, and its timely editorials. Under the guidance of Erna R. Fleischer, each issue included special features to appeal to the interests of all segments of the Erasmus student body. Interviews, sports news, and resports of students accomplishments helped round out the always anxiously-awaited four pages, with big assists from the humorous cartoon and the play and movie reviews that were regular features of The Dutchman.

ERASMIAN

The creative, literary, and artistic talents of the Class of 1961 found expression in the stimulating page of The Erasmian. Each term, the staff, with the assistance of faculty adviser Harriet K. Felder, selected the poems, stories, essays, puzzles, and illustrations of quality and taste which were to appear in this publication. The winners of the Richard Young literary contest generally had their prize-winning works printed in The Erasmian.

The lives of the contributors were summarized in each issue with a choice line calculated to produce chuckles. Even those who purchased The Erasmian only to avoid reading a fourth book for English class soon became engrossed in it; all closed it regretfully after many hours of enjoyment.

Three departments issued publications to enrich their regular curricula. These magazines consisted of articles written by the students and for the students of Erasmus.

Papyrus, the Mathematics Department publication, was handicapped by the dearth of literate mathematicians. Several were found, however. With the guidance of Sylvia Silbersher, the staff succeeded in mixing numbers, words, and drawings in perfect proportions. The more mathematically inclined may still be puzzling over the stupefying problems which were included; the rest of us have long since finished the crossword puzzle.

Biota, the Biology Department's contribution, maintained a consistently high literary as well as scientific standard. Prepared under the supervision of Department Chairman Thomas Lawrence, it included articles by winners of science competitions, drawings, news of the department, and the inevitable crossword puzzle. Some read Biota for news of interesting scientific discoveries; others simply enjoyed the cartoons.

The French Department, not to be outdone by the mathematicians and scientists, published Marianne with chairman Sidney Levitan as adviser. All Erasmians enjoyed this magazine, although those who could read French probably gained most from the articles on France, the humorous stories, and the news of the department, all written entirely in French.

For a small sum, any Erasmian could obtain a fascinating review of the goings-on in mathematics, biology, and French, good for hours of enjoyment. The contributors as well as we the readers profited greatly from their efforts.

Arista, the Erasmus Hall honor society, was affectionately referred to by its members as APIΣTA. The top 4% of the student body was selected for outstanding scholarship, character, and service. The boy and girl leaders of the organization, with the assistance of adviser Mark Bauch, maintained the high standards of service to school and community set by the founder of Arista, Dr. Walter B. Gunnison.

Among the accomplishments of Arista this year were the fall term clothing drive and the theatre party conducted in the spring. Both helped bring happiness to the lives of the needy both here and in foreign lands. In a hectic but profitable year, Arista again proved its great value. Its members, and indeed all of Erasmus Hall, can look back with pride on the accomplishments of Arista.

XYZ

Two of the major problems faced by XYZ were the lack of tutors and tutees. Student instructors, claiming that no one present needed to be helped, would run off to the side blackboard to explore the mysteries of math, while throngs of students desiring assistance in geometry, algebra, or trigonometry complained of the dearth of tutors. This difficulty was finally ironed out when faculty adviser Sylvia Silbersher declared blackboards off limits to tutors without pupils.

Many were attracted to XYZ by the Friday afternoon lectures. Students, teachers, and guest speakers found their talks on assorted mathematical curiosities and obscurities infallibly greeted by cheering hordes of future mathematicians. The schedule was arranged by the XYZ vice-president to assure a balanced series of lectures covering many phases of math.

XYZ served as a mathematics honor society, a tutoring club, and a convenient meeting-place. Whatever the reason, each day saw scores of eager students in room 114, the headquarters of XYZ.

Education at Erasmus was not confined to formal classes. In addition to the prescribed courses of study, we had the opportunity to join a wide variety of extracurricular clubs.

This year saw the return of debating to Erasmus after a long absence. The well-named "Sophists" engaged in inter-scholastic debate with city and private schools in addition to regular discussion of the national topic, "Resolved: that the United Nations should be significantly strengthened."

Many a linguistic-minded Erasmian discovered others of similar inclination in French or Russian Clubs. Here, culture and the spoken language were stressed. The Chess Club met in Room 8. Passers-by during meetings, puzzled at the raucous cries of "I was rooked," frequently entered to try to keep the noise in check, only to become hopeless pawns of this most ancient of games.

Members were renowned for their adamant and unshakable opinions, and meetings were renowned for their atmosphere of good-natured dissension and violent agreement. The Radio Club provided a unique opportunity for "hams" and "eggheads" to unscramble their differences in common enthusiasm for the Erasmus Hall amateur radio station.

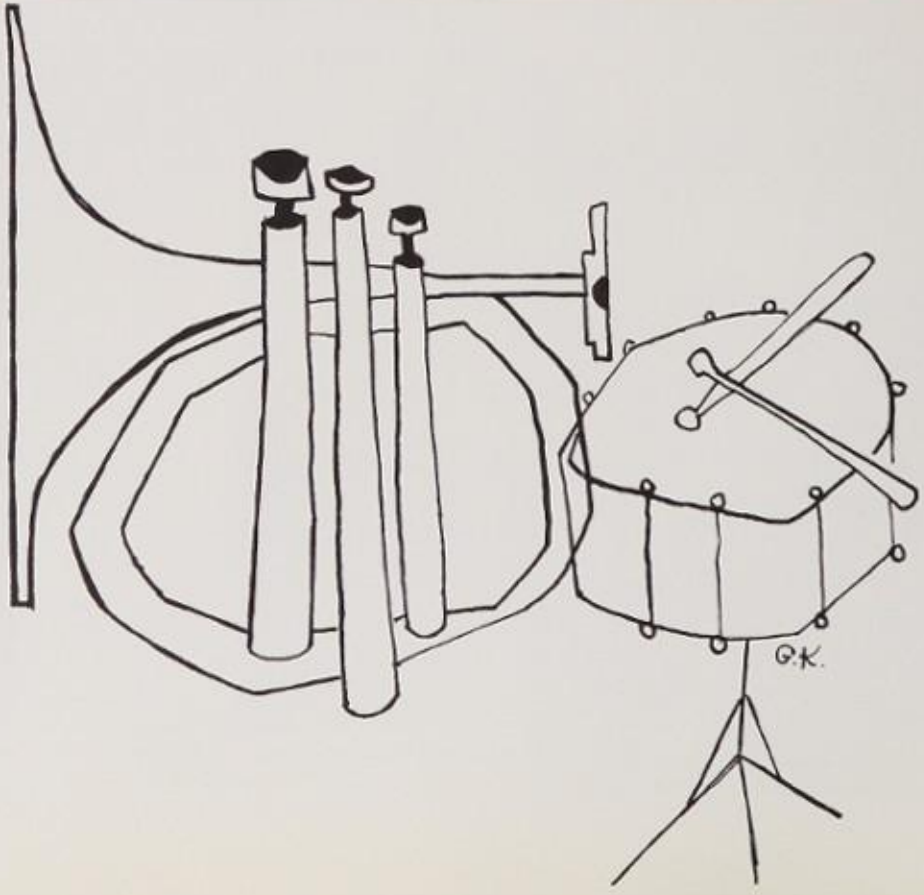
CONCERTS



CHRISTMAS AND SPRING CONCERTS

Among the most eagerly awaited events of the school year were the traditional Christmas and Spring Concerts. The participants were the Orchestra, conducted by Sidney Bowden, the Symphonic Band under the baton of Martin Millela, the Choral Club led by Cosimo De Pietto, the Cantata directed by Caryl Segestrom, and the Boys Glee Club under Joseph Albertson.

The Christmas Concert was held in the Erasmus Hall Chapel. Selected Christmas songs were performed by the different groups, resulting in breathtaking beauty of voice and variety of style. The Concert was repeated four times to reach the largest possible audience. Despite this, tickets were at a premium. Those who were fortunate enough to attend found the Christmas Concert an inspiring experience.

The Spring Concert was the other top musical event. In order to accommodate the large number of people who desired to attend, the Walt Whitman Auditorium at Brooklyn College was chosen as the site. The production was designed to appeal to all musical tastes. Selections ranged from classical to distinctly modern, from serious to light. Each performing group played an individual medley, and all joined in the rousing finale, the culmination of a thoroughly enjoyable musical treat.

We owe much to all the groups of the Music Department. Their concerted efforts made the Christmas and Spring Concerts the resounding successes they were.

SING

For the fourth time in our school's history, the colorful Erasmus Hall Sing was sung, but only after months of exhaustive work by hundreds of students.

The Annual Sing consisted of four twenty-minute musicals, each presented by a different grade. First Prize was awarded by the judges on the basis of quality of theme, presentation, lyrics, costumes, and originality.

Work on the school affair began early in December. At that time, under the guidance of faculty adviser Sirkka Johnson, script committees and sing and chorus leaders were selected by each grade. The script committee began to meet immediately in school and at members' homes. Songs were written to develop the grade theme and were supplemented by witty dialogue.

The two months immediately prior to the Sing were perhaps the busiest. Songs had to be learned by the chorus, lines had to be memorized by the actors, and dances had to be devised and rehearsed by the choreographers and dancers. In addition, this was the period during which scenery was constructed and programs were drawn up.

The final product certainly justified the hard work done for Sing 1961. The many Erasmians who joined in or witnessed the Sing all enjoyed themselves immensely.

GRADUATION

The graduation ceremony marked the formal ending of our stay at Erasmus Hall, the culmination of our high school careers. It marked not only the fruition of six months of preparation in our music classes but also the fulfillment of four years of work in Erasmus classrooms. The occasion was a moving experience for all of us.

Our parents, relatives, and friends were invited to attend the memorable event. One of the highlights of the program occurred when awards were given to those who had done unusual work, performed exceptional services, or received honors. All of us found our names inscribed in the programs given to each guest.

Our lives at Erasmus were happy ones. It was with mixed emotions, therefore, that we received our diplomas.

Sports

BASKETBALL

Genuine enthusiasm, outstanding individual playing and excellent teamwork were chiefly responsible for Erasmus' first P.S.A.L. basketball championship in thirteen years.

The Dutchmen went undefeated this season, the only team in the city to do so. Each team in our league was vanquished twice by Erasmus and three favored squads were out-scored by our hoopsters in the playoffs.

Erasmus was fortunate in having Bill Cunningham, the All-City center. Leading the team to victory in the first fifteen games, Bill broke court, team, and league scoring records, averaging 34.8 points a game. When he graduated in January, many thought that the Dutchman hopes went with him, but junior Charley Donovan, although only five feet six inches tall, filled Bill's shoes admirably. His fancy dribbling and excellent playmaking ability helped the team win its remaining games. In addition to Bill and Charley, Bob Lawrence, Ron Snow, Len Tobin, and soph Marty Goldstein excelled.

The most exciting games of the year were the last five. In the final contest of the regular season, the Erasmus cagers came from behind to tie Wingate and go on to win in overtime. The same happened in the first playoff game against Jefferson at Madison Square Garden. The Commerce and Columbus victories also required last quarter spurts. In the final game, played with Franklin K. Lane High School for first place honors, the score see-sawed until Bob Lawrence sank two foul shots, minutes before the end of the game.

Coach Bernard Kirsner is very proud of the P.S.A.L. tournament this season, and hopes that next year's team, sparked by Charley Donovan, Len Tobin and Marty Goldstein, will do equally well.

TRACK AND CROSS-COUNTRY

The gentle pitter-patter of not so little feet often heard outside our windows could be traced directly to the Erasmus Hall track team. Neither summer's heat nor winter's cold stopped these stoical athletes in their training. Track team members have been known to cover the 220 yards from the Administration Building to the Bedford Arch in less than 30 seconds during practice, easily outdistancing even the student late for an English test.

The track schedule was rough, and training had to be grueling. There were outdoor meets in the fall and spring, and indoor competitions in the winter. The efforts of coach Mel Heichman and his runners more than paid off, however. For the first time in more than twenty years, the harriers won the Brooklyn Cross-Country championship. Individual honors were also copped by Erasmus, as cross-country captain Tony Hasbourne placed first in the borough. In the Mayor's meet, our 880-yard relay team placed a respectable fifth in a field of 75 of the top teams in the New York area. Our fine athletes competed in the high jump, shot put, hurdles, and pole vault as well as in the sprints and distance running events in these and other meets.

Captains Mel White and Dennis Dyce helped keep the team functioning smoothly. 1961 was certainly a banner year for the track stars of Erasmus Hall. The average Erasmian, in fact, could hardly keep track of the team's accomplishments.

FOOTBALL

The 1960 football season was a disappointing one for Erasmus, although our team was well-balanced, strong and talented. Halfback George Hobson, the high scorer, tackle Tom Crystal, the captain, and tackle Elmer Kornegay formed a spine-chilling backbone for our starting squad. When they were "hot," as assistant coach Howard Furer noted, "they were an unbeatable team." The breaks, however, were not always on the side of Erasmus, although the sprains generally were. We finished with a 2 – 5 record.

All was not dismal; Erasmus broke a long losing streak carried over from last season with a thrilling 32 – 14 upset victory over Boys High. The outlook for next season is also anything but disheartening. Seven varsity letter-men will return next year, including returning starters Johnny Strange, Steve Coletti, and Neil Gingold. They will be joined by a large number of extremely promising newcomers. We offer a word of caution to all Brooklyn schools: watch out for Erasmus football in 1961.

TENNIS

Netman Jerry Goldblatt uses underhanded tactics to return a serve.

The tennis menace of Erasmus Hall was feared throughout Brooklyn. Lafayette, Jefferson, and New Utrecht netmen shared a common apprehension of the Dutchman stars' sizzling serves and rousing returns.

In the tennis racket, one must be quick, awake, and well-co-ordinated to do well. Each member of the Erasmus tennis team possessed these qualities, and certainly they did succeed. Our record of seven victories and one defeat enabled us to win the division championship.

"This year's team," according to coach Al Badain, "surprised everyone. It started off green, but it finished with an admirable record." Jerry Goldblatt, Mark Naisson, Ernest Park, Ira Honig, and Captain Marc Lippman were singled out as the outstanding players. They excelled in singles and doubles matches alike.

The most thrilling game of the year was played against Wingate for the Borough Championship. In a close singles match, Wingate scored the fifth and deciding tally. Despite this setback, the Erasmus Hall tennis team of 1961, sparked by teamwork and co-ordination, was one of the finest in school history.

SWIMMING

The pooled efforts of the swimming team struck a wave of fear in many an opponent's heart. The respect which other schools reserved for our squad was far greater than our 3 – 4 season's record would indicate. The reason for our swimmers' ability to induce anxiety was our swimmers' ability to swim; consider such individual team performances as our swamping of Sheephead Bay by a score of 60 – 6, and such individual performances as the extraordinary time of 1:73.1 ticked off in the 100-yard backstroke by junior Mark Grashauer. Other outstanding team members included Captain Ricardo Hoffman, who returned this year after placing third in the post-season City Championships, and juniors Sammy Zeitlin, our top diver, and free-style ace Freddy Weiss.

Next year will see the return of most of our top swimmers, and the addition of several promising newcomers. The amateur fishes of Erasmus Hall, according to coach James Ryan, "will be a force to reckon with in 1962."

BASEBALL

Erasmus Hall's version of our national pastime was played enthusiastically by the baseball team. Their melodious cries of "batter up," which could be heard with the song of the first robin, were sure signs that spring was on the way.

This year's team depended almost entirely on new blood. Pitcher Greg Fried, infielder Pat Kennedy, catcher Eric Stern, and outfielder Carl Bernsten were the sole returning players of last year's excellent team. The rest of the squad was made up of promising juniors. The team undoubtedly had its strong points. While we had no one to compare with last year's star catcher, Joe Garcia, few could balk at our pitching. The boys were green, but Coach Austin Dugan was determined to whip his players into shape by the season's opener. This he did. On every occasion, as Coach Dugan's squad clashed with those of other schools, our team produced the best combination of teamwork and play it was capable of.

BOWLING

According to Coach John Campana, the Erasmus bowlers of 1961 were "one of the strongest teams in years." Getting strikes and spares was right up their alley.

With eight league victories and only four defeats, Erasmus had one of the finest records in the city. Two of our victories were in matches against Jamaica and Forest Hills, two of the top Queens teams. In addition to the regularly scheduled games, six non-league matches were played. In one of the four exhibition victories, we won seven out of nine games against Brooklyn Tech, the first time such a feat took place in five years.

The team was sparked by keglers Jerry Rubin, Bruce Nicoll, Jeff Anker, Howard Warshauer, Alan Sills, and Steve Halpern. Bruce Nicoll, only 14 years old, placed second in a field of 100 in the Brooklyn Bowling Championship competition.

The bowling team of 1961 certainly had a lot on the ball. We bowled down nearly all opposition with strikes to spare.

SOCCER

Few sports require the degree of teamwork and co-ordination so necessary in soccer. Practice is the key to reaching the goal of reaching the goal. This was evident to all who chanced to walk past the Parade Grounds on many an autumn afternoon only to see white balls bounce off black and blue soccer team members' heads. This practice helped to make a talented group of boys a closely knit team.

Our record in interscholastic competition was six wins and six losses. The season was highlighted by a thrilling victory over Midwood that saw clutch-scoring by Erasmus in the closing minutes of play. Among our defeats the loss to Brooklyn Tech on a last-period goal was particularly heart-breaking.

Coach Malcolm Shanman can rightfully be proud of the performance of our soccer team, led by Captain Raul Dorrego and Co-Captain Bart Pagliugi. Erasmians can look forward to even brighter years in the future.

GOLF

Golf, as you may recall, is the famous game in which the participants strive earnestly to shoot absurdly small white balls into absurdly small cups. Erasmus traditionally produces some of the most enthusiastic of golfers, and the Class of 1961 was no exception.

The duffers of Erasmus Hall looked forward to a far more successful season this year than their disappointing sixth place in 1960. Some of last year's top players returned as seniors to provide an experienced nucleus for the team, including Captain Peter Panuthos, Mark Leibergall, Robert Schiff, Arthur Poggi, and former caddy Fred Almskog. Juniors Jeff Diamond, Larry Levine, and Sam Levine rounded out the squad and gave special promise for 1962. Although the newcomers proved to be a bit green on the greens, they were veritable diamonds in the rough.

Mr. Neil Brown, the coach, could well point to the enormous potential of the team of 1961 and issue the following pointed warning to other city high schools: "Fore!"

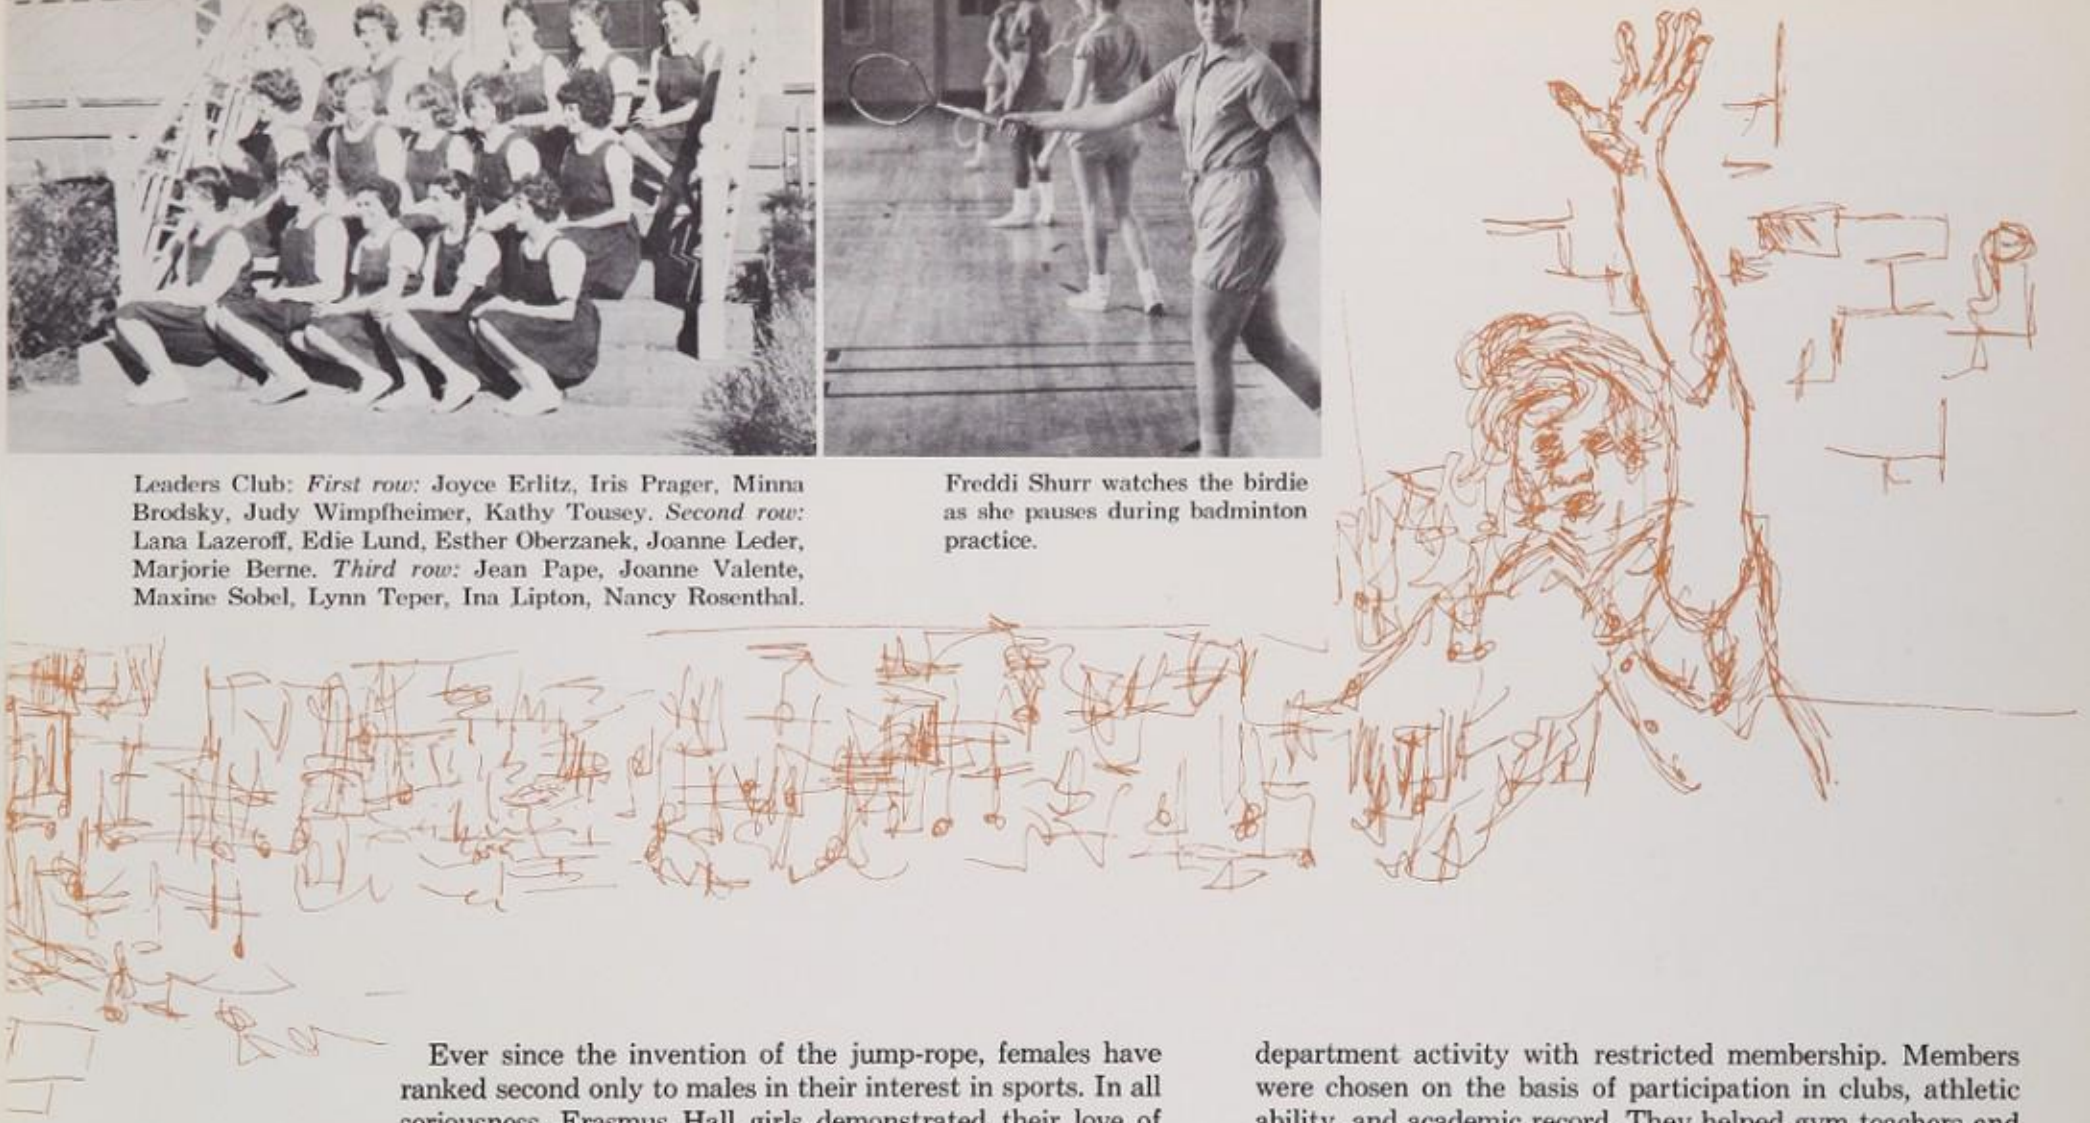
Freddi Shurr watches the birdie as she pauses during badminton practice.



Ever since the invention of the jump-rope, females have ranked second only to males in their interest in sports. In all seriousness, Erasmus Hall girls demonstrated their love of athletics by taking part in the many extracurricular activities of the Girls Health Education Department.

During the fall term girls joined Volley Ball, Basketball, Badminton, Bowling, and Modern Dance Clubs. In the spring they turned to softball, tennis, and swimming. The Field Hockey Club was a special attraction. The members of this group, one of the few of its kind in New York, played each week in Prospect Park. The Leaders Club was the only department activity with restricted membership. Members were chosen on the basis of participation in clubs, athletic ability, and academic record. They helped gym teachers and met regularly after school to discuss the Kings County Hospital drive and other projects they helped conduct.

In the girls athletic clubs sprained ankles, active arms and legs, and smiling faces were common sights. Their owners profited from the program by learning valuable sports techniques and enjoying themselves at the same time. With ten clubs and three hundred fifty members, Erasmus had one of the most extensive girls sports programs in the city.

SPIRIT

Erasmus Hall was always well represented in spirit as well as in body at athletic contests. In fact, our school boosters, twirlers, and cheerleaders always greatly outnumbered the team members and sometimes appeared to outdo the spectators as well in noise if not in number. This was especially true during the chilly football months, when Erasmus cheers shook the stands and the few patriotic Erasmians sitting on them. Basketball, however, was played indoors, and the Erasmus cheering squads found enthusiastic audiences both in the packed galleries of gym 125 and along the boundaries of the court itself. The zest and enthusiasm of Sirkka Johnson's Boosters, Cathryn Dorney's Twirlers, and Arthur Chappell's Cheerleaders added luster to the fine record of Erasmus Hall athletes this year.

Twirlers: First row: Corinne Factor, Joan Williams, Carolee Laino. Second row: Nora Nevins, Lucy White, Elaine Calabro, Deborah Shapiro, Faculty Adviser Cathryn Dorney, Judy Colbert, Amy Rubin, Margaret Corso.

Cheerleaders: Alan Sankin, James Aridas, Kenneth Grundfast, Stephen Dick.

The long road rises, scene by scene
With little restings in between.
And so I say that every end
Is only an unexpected bend
In the eternal roadway
To peaks above from peaks below.
The yesterdays are shells we shed:
The best is always on ahead.
There's always some new world for winning,
And every end is a new beginning.

Edwin Markham
